

Paul Staples
Fleet director, TransPennine Express

Paul Staples has led the Engineering Team at TransPennine Express since 2012 and prior to that worked in the operator's Engineering team since 2003, when he supported the first mobilisation of the franchise after an early career in the manufacturing construction industry in the Midlands.

Paul is a mechanical engineer by training and, now firmly ensconced in the North of England, specialises in forming collaborative partnerships across commercial and operational interfaces to help TransPennine Express support the regional growth mission with high-performance, high-quality services.
